

David S. Evans

David S. Evans is an Adjunct Professor for the Executive Leadership and Organizational Change program in the Department of Management, Haile/US Bank College of Business at Northern Kentucky University.

He is a results-oriented executive leader with over 25 years of marketing, sales, support, engineering, and consulting/training experience with high technology products and services with two Fortune 100 firms (GE Aircraft Engines & Power Generation and Honeywell Aerospace), a mid-size precision manufacturing company (Heroux-DevTek), an independent Change Management and Leadership consulting organization (TPG), and a privately-held early-stage industrial wireless technologies firm. He possesses a strong combination of team leadership capabilities, a disciplined approach to strategic planning and tactical implementation, an exceptional business growth track record (including profit/loss management and customer satisfaction improvement), Six Sigma Green Belt certification, and excellent program management skills. He has participated on two M&A integration leadership teams, acquired significant international business and engineering field experience, and led various marketing and sales organizations.

Dave has earned an MBA from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University, and M.S. and B.S. degrees in Aerospace Engineering from the University of Cincinnati and The Pennsylvania State University (with High Distinction), respectively.
